Judicial Tenure Commission Recommends Judges For Reappointment To Senior Status

This is to notify members of the bar and the general public that the Commission has submitted its report to Chief Judge Eric T. Washington concerning the qualifications and fitness of Judge John A. Terry to continue serving as a Senior Judge of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals. The Commission evaluated Judge Terry's performance and activities, since his reappointment as a Senior Judge four years ago, and based on that evaluation the Commission recommended Judge Terry's reappointment as a Senior Judge.

The Commission today also submitted its reports to Chief Judge Lee F. Satterfield concerning the qualifications of Judges Geoffrey M. Alprin, Gregory E. Mize, and Patricia A. Wynn concerning their qualifications and fitness to continue serving as Senior Judges of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia. The Commission evaluated the performance and activities of the three Judges since their reappointment four years ago, and based on those evaluations, the Commission recommended the reappointment of Judges Alprin, Mize, and Wynn as Senior Judges.

The decision to appoint or reappoint a Senior Judge candidate must be made by the Chief Judge of the candidate's Court within 30 days after receipt of the Commission's recommendations and findings. The decision of the Chief Judge regarding such appointment is final.
